Summary of reasons for decision:

The DVD consists of explicit depictions of sexual activity between men and women shot in a male POV style, with a theme throughout involving the women being new to the industry or new to the particular sexual acts they will perform. Three excisions to the feature, including one scene in its entirety, are required to remove highly degrading, dehumanising and demeaning sexual material. Two excisions remove examples of ejaculations on women's faces that deliberately cause discomfort and provide a spectacle for the camera. The third scene shows a woman fellating four men, who take turns at deep thrusting into her mouth. The woman's willingness to perform, despite considerable discomfort, is extremely demeaning. All three examples degrade, dehumanise and demean women for the sexual arousal of viewers. Viewers are encouraged to enjoy the women's lack of control over their representation and the material reinforces misogynistic views.

The distributor declined to make the required excisions in this instance.

The right to freedom of expression set out in the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990 has been weighed against likelihood of injury to the public good arising from the unexcised availability of the DVD. A classification of "objectionable" is a reasonable limitation that reflects the concerns of a free and democratic society and is consistent with the intention of Parliament that publications depicting sexual conduct that strongly degrades, dehumanises and demeans women will be banned.
